DEAR FELLOW SHAREHOLDERS

The theme of this year's annual report, "Bold Moves, Big Future," could also accurately describe Chesapeake's history. When Tom Ward and I co-founded the company in May 1989, we had a bold idea — to take advantage of the new technology of horizontal drilling and apply that technology to fractured carbonate reservoirs, a type of reservoir that today, along with other tight rock formations, is called unconventional. We followed with the equally bold idea that land acquisition skills could eventually become a key competitive advantage in an industry traditionally dominated by the geological and engineering disciplines.

Since its founding 23 years ago on these two bold ideas, Chesapeake's innovative business strategy and successful growth have been defined by other bold moves, based on certain keen insights, that have helped create a big future for our company.

BOLD ACQUISITION GROWTH

In the depths of the oil and gas recession of early 1999, I developed the insight that U.S. natural gas prices would likely move significantly and structurally higher as electricity usage was likely to increase at above average rates (because of the growth of the Internet and the increasing size of the average American home, among other factors). I realized a multitude of new natural gas-fired power generation plants would need to be built to meet this increased demand, but didn't believe the U.S. natural gas supply could keep up with this increased demand. From 1999 to 2005, that insight led the company to the bold moves of acquiring as many natural gas assets as we could and developing an organization capable of operating a large-scale drilling program.

In the beginning, we pursued this strategy with limited financial resources amid a great deal of industry, research analyst and investor skepticism. Many observers of our company bet that natural gas prices would increase to $3 per thousand cubic feet (mcf) from $1 per mcf before Chesapeake's stock price would increase to $3 per share from $1 per share. Despite such skepticism, we performed our research thoroughly and were convinced the die was cast for U.S. natural gas prices to rise substantially. In fact, that is exactly what they did, increasing from a low of $1.67 per mcf in 1999 to a high of $13.91 per mcf in 2005.

2011 Financial and Operational Highlights

Average daily liquids production increased 72% from 50,000 bbls in 2010 to 87,000 bbls in 2011

Average daily natural gas production increased 9% from 2.5 bcf in 2010 to 2.8 bcf in 2011

Proved natural gas and oil reserves increased 10% from 17.1 tcf in 2010 to 18.8 tcf in 2011

2011 reserve replacement reached 242% at a drilling and completion cost on proved properties of only $1.08 per mcfe⁽¹⁾

Revenues increased 24% to $11.6 billion

Realized hedging gains were $1.6 billion

Adjusted ebitda⁽²⁾ increased 6% to $5.4 billion

Operating cash flow⁽²⁾ increased 3% to $5.3 billion

Implemented and made significant progress toward the company's 25/25 Plan that calls for a 25% reduction in long-term debt and a 25% increase in production over the two-year period ending December 31, 2012

Announced discovery of the Utica Shale play in eastern Ohio

Significantly shifted drilling and completion capital to liquids-rich plays

Monetized more than $7.0 billion of proved and unproved properties including the complete exit from the Fayetteville Shale in Arkansas

Made strategic investments in natural gas demand creation initiatives

During that time, we made increasingly bold investments in leasehold, producing properties and drilling, ultimately investing approximately $15 billion in those seven years. Chesapeake's production grew rapidly, moving the company from a Top 20 U.S. natural gas producer in 1999 to a Top 10 U.S. natural gas producer in 2005. After expressing initial doubts, Chesapeake's shareholders applauded our moves, and they were rewarded handsomely as our stock price increased from less than $1 per share in 1999 to a high of $40 per share in 2005.

BOLD SHIFT TO SHALE GAS PLAYS

In late 2004, we developed another keen insight and recognized the discovery and development of low-cost, low-risk shale gas could change our industry for decades to come, if not forever. The commercialization of horizontal drilling in the Barnett Shale around Fort Worth, Texas, kicked off a shale gas "Land Rush" by the industry. Chesapeake made the bold move to secure the strongest leasehold position in the core of the play in Tarrant and Johnson counties, despite the challenges of urban drilling in and around Fort Worth.

In 2005, as the Fayetteville Shale in Arkansas yielded strong early results, we made the bold move to quickly secure what became the industry's second-largest position in the Fayetteville. As most observers and shareholders of Chesapeake know, the company subsequently discovered the Haynesville and Bossier shales in Louisiana in 2007, which, in just four years, have together become the largest gas-producing field in the U.S. at more than 7.1 billion cubic feet (bcf) per day as of December 2011.

Also in 2005, we completed the bold acquisition of Columbia Natural Resources, LLC in Appalachia for $3.0 billion (our largest acquisition ever), which became the foundation for our industry-leading position in the Marcellus Shale play. The Marcellus will likely surpass the Haynesville/Bossier in the next few years to become the largest natural gas-producing field in the U.S.

From 2005 to 2011, our company's natural gas production increased by 1.6 bcf per day, or 140%, to 2.8 bcf per day, making Chesapeake the second-largest producer of U.S. natural gas on a net basis and the largest producer of U.S. natural gas on a gross operated basis with an approximate 9% national market share.

BOLD INVESTMENTS IN TECHNOLOGY

As we built the industry's largest shale gas resource base, we transformed Chesapeake from a fast follower of new plays into the leading innovator and discoverer of new U.S. unconventional resource plays. We made significant investments in 3-D seismic, reservoir engineering technology, petrophysical research, and we greatly increased the size and expertise of our technical teams to build the industry's most sophisticated unconventional resource development organization. Specifically, we grew our geoscience, engineering and operational professional teams by 165% from 950 professionals in 2005 to more than 2,550 today.

Our teams are aided by the industry's premier shale core lab at our proprietary Reservoir Technology Center (RTC), which has analyzed more than 50,000 feet of core samples since it was established in 2007, three times as many as the next most active company. The RTC helps us find new plays and perfect existing ones through the skillful analysis of daily production data from the more than 20,000 wells we operate, as well as the daily data gathered from our industry-leading drilling program, which operates more than twice as many rigs as the next most active U.S. driller. Chesapeake's information flows are second to none in the industry and represent an important and unmatched competitive advantage.

As a result of the significant investments in technology and human resources, Chesapeake followed its Haynesville/Bossier discovery with the discovery of the Mississippi Lime carbonate play in 2007, the Colony Granite Wash tight sand play in 2007, the Tonkawa tight sand play in 2008 and the Utica Shale play in 2010. Having discovered six unconventional plays in the past five years, we can find no other company that has discovered more than two.

BOLD VERTICAL INTEGRATION STRATEGIES

As we grew and delineated our unconventional resource base, we recognized that our reinvestment risks had been reduced to minimal levels. We had helped transform the E&P business from a high-risk wildcatting business into a manufacturing style business with decades of low-risk drilling opportunities in our inventory. So in 2006, we made the bold decision to expand the vertical integration of our business — just as many manufacturers do — into a broader range of oilfield services and midstream operations to help eliminate bottlenecks and to allow for more rapid development of our upstream assets. We knew this decision would not only help protect us from rising oilfield service costs and high midstream costs, but also improve our overall efficiencies and safety.

This vertical integration strategy has enabled us to create even more value for our shareholders through our unique ability to accelerate development drilling and advance the present value of our unconventional resource base. This ability is extremely valuable not only to us, but also to our joint venture (JV) partners who are willing to pay a higher price for leasehold acreage if it can be developed faster. Unlike our competitors, we control our own destiny by providing the critical oilfield services we need to grow our business.

Our general goal is to own or control about two-thirds of the oilfield services and equipment we use. Today, Chesapeake's oilfield services operations include the nation's fourth-largest drilling rig fleet, one of the largest oilfield trucking fleets and what we anticipate will become one of the largest hydraulic fracturing companies in the U.S. Additionally, through our ownership in Chesapeake Midstream Development, L.P. and investment in Chesapeake Midstream Partners, L.P. we own the largest natural gas gathering business in the industry.

BOLD SHIFT FROM NATURAL GAS TO LIQUIDS

Beginning in 2008, Chesapeake recognized the large number of U.S. unconventional shale gas discoveries could lead to a glut of natural gas in the U.S., likely resulting in lower prices — while the relentless growth of Asian economies pointed to a very tight worldwide oil market, likely resulting in higher oil prices. We responded with the bold move of beginning to explore for unconventional formations in liquids-prone U.S. basins that could benefit from the transfer of the knowledge and expertise that we had developed discovering and producing shale gas resources in the U.S. We mobilized our technical teams to redirect their efforts from finding more gas shales to finding more liquids-rich plays.

This redirection of focus by our company (and others) in late 2008 closed the shale gas "Land Rush" chapter of our industry's history that began in 2005. During that time, Chesapeake established the #2 position in the Barnett and Fayetteville natural gas shale plays and the #1 position in the Haynesville, Bossier and Marcellus natural gas shale plays. No other company has a #1 or #2 position in more than one of these plays, and we knew this would put Chesapeake in a competitively advantaged position for decades to come.

In 2009, we accelerated the next bold move of our company's history and began aggressively acquiring leading positions in almost all of the nation's big liquids-rich plays, during the unconventional liquids “Land Rush” period in the industry, which we believe will be largely completed by year-end 2012. As a result, we now have the #1 position in the Utica Shale play in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania; the Mississippi Lime carbonate play in northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas; the Granite Wash, Cleveland and Tonkawa tight sand plays of the Anadarko Basin in western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle; and the #2 position in the Eagle Ford Shale play in South Texas and the Niobrara Shale play in the Powder River Basin in Wyoming, as well as a top three position in the various unconventional liquids-rich plays of the Permian and Delaware basins of West Texas and southern New Mexico.

VALUE-CREATING FINANCING STRATEGIES

Because of the technological advances and bold moves discussed above, our investment opportunities over the past few years have exceeded our cash flow from operations. We believed the window of opportunity to lock down the industry’s best collection of unconventional natural gas and liquids assets at a very low cost would be short lived. We also knew Chesapeake possessed the distinctive ability to identify new play concepts, secure leasehold, accelerate drilling and validate new plays, which would be very valuable to larger industry partners who had not been able to replicate our skill sets.

To take advantage of what we had built and what we knew others needed, we created a very successful JV strategy, which has become the preferred template for partnership in the industry. Our first JV in the Haynesville Shale in 2008 with Plains Exploration (NYSE:PXP) was the industry’s groundbreaking JV transaction. Many observers and competitors of our company suggested that it was likely a one-off deal and unlikely to have much lasting significance for the industry. We thought otherwise, and today our bold strategy has become the industry standard with more than 35 JV transactions valued at more than $36 billion completed in the past four years. Chesapeake has led the industry during this time, closing seven JVs and receiving consideration of more than $16 billion, or nearly half of the industry’s total JV transaction value, and recouping 120% of our initial investment while only selling an average of 25% of our initial interest in the JV plays.

Chesapeake has produced only 2% of the resource base we own.

To supplement funding of Chesapeake's rapid growth, we developed a number of value-creating financing strategies specifically tailored to the risk profile of different assets and designed to secure low-cost financing, limit financial leverage and minimize shareholder dilution. We have executed these strategies very successfully, enabling us to secure a much larger and more valuable resource base than we otherwise would have been able to secure using only our cash flow from operations.

BOLD 25/25 PLAN

In early 2011, we outlined our bold 25/25 Plan that was designed to achieve balance sheet metrics worthy of an investment grade rating and thereby improve the value of our common stock. The plan calls for reducing our long-term debt by 25% and increasing our production by 25% over the two-year period ending December 2012. Concurrently, we plan to complete a transformational shift to more liquids production, build one of the largest U.S. onshore oilfield services companies and further expand our industry-leading gathering and processing operations.

This is clearly a bold plan that few energy companies of any size would have the ability to accomplish, especially during this challenging period of low natural gas prices. I look forward to writing next year's letter with this achievement in hand.

BIG FUTURE — CHESAPEAKE HAS CAPTURED THE LARGEST U.S. RESOURCE BASE

I am quite confident that when the history of this era of the oil and gas industry is written, the companies that will have performed the best will be those few bold companies that first recognized how unconventional resource development in the U.S. would end the first 150 years of industry history and set the course for the next era. I believe this new era will dominate our industry's future for at least the next 50 years. I further believe Chesapeake is the best-positioned E&P company to benefit from what lies ahead because our assets and human resources are second to none in quality and size.

On Chesapeake's 15.3 million net acres of leasehold (by comparison, about the size of West Virginia), we have produced 6.6 trillion cubic feet of natural gas equivalent (tcf) to date from 22,000 net wells and have another 10.1 tcf left of proved reserves to produce from these existing wells. We could potentially drill up to another 125,000 net wells to develop 8.7 tcf of proved undeveloped reserves and 350 tcf of unrisks unproved resources that underlie our leasehold. In other words, Chesapeake has produced only 2% of the resource base we own. This bodes extremely well for the predictability of our growth and the ultimate value of the company's assets and stock price. In addition, much of our shale gas leasehold has been initially drilled upon and is now considered "held by production" or "HBP'ed," which turns it from a temporary asset into a permanent asset. This HBP process is also underway on our liquids-rich leasehold and should be largely brought to a conclusion within the next three years.

Chesapeake's total estimated unrisks unproved resource base of 350 tcf is by far the largest such resource base in the U.S. Chesapeake's market valuation today very clearly does not give this unrivaled resource upside any value. We presume this is because of investors' overwhelmingly negative view about the near-term future of U.S. natural gas prices. We believe this is a shortsighted approach to determining the value of our company and our unproved resource base. We are determined to unlock this value for our shareholders.

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR U.S. NATURAL GAS — THE WORLD'S MOST UNDERVALUED ASSET

We believe U.S. natural gas is the most undervalued asset in the world, and it represents a once-in-a-generation investment opportunity.

U.S. natural gas is the most undervalued asset in the world, and it represents a once-in-a-generation investment opportunity.

Currently, world oil prices are around $120 per barrel — that is a British Thermal Unit (BTU) equivalent of about $20 per mcf. On the other hand, U.S. natural gas prices are now $2 per mcf — that makes natural gas one-tenth the cost of oil, yet natural gas can do for consumers almost everything that oil can do and can do it more cleanly. How many times in the past 50 years can you think of a situation where large-scale competing products are so mispriced against each other?

It's simply a matter of time before the U.S. meaningfully shifts from transportation systems built around consuming high-priced oil to consuming low-priced domestic natural gas, which is also the cleaner fuel by far. Given the U.S. has been consuming dirty coal to clean natural gas in electrical power generation, we are working aggressively to help create a natural gas fueling infrastructure across the nation to speed conversion of our transportation system to natural gas. For example, we have committed $160 million to Clean Energy Fuels, Inc. (NYSE:CLNE) and encouraged some of our Asian partners to invest another $240 million to help CLNE expedite the conversion of diesel- and gasoline-only travel centers to outlets that also provide natural gas refueling options, primarily liquefied natural gas (LNG). Further, we are investing millions of dollars to provide leading national and regional convenience store and travel center operators with up-front capital to help them add natural gas fueling dispensers to their stores and stations.

We have also committed $155 million to acquire a 50% interest in privately held Sundrop Fuels, Inc., which has developed a proprietary process for combining waste biomass and natural gas at high temperatures to create the world's first truly "green gasoline." Sundrop's first plant will break ground in January 2013 in Louisiana, and we expect large-scale production of this low-cost, environmentally clean, all-American fuel in 2015.

Moreover, we have agreed to strategically invest $10 million alongside 3M Corporation (NYSE:MMM) to revolutionize the design and manufacturing of compressed natural gas (CNG) tanks, today the most expensive component of a CNG fueling system. These advanced pressure vessels will ensure significant performance improvements leading to lighter-weight designs, longer life and more durability than traditional steel and carbon fiber tanks. Partnering with global manufacturers such as 3M provides opportunities for mass production and unit cost reduction, both critical needs for rapid market adoption of CNG.

In addition, we have recently agreed to a very significant collaboration with General Electric Company (NYSE:GE) to bring to market CNG In A Box™ — preassembled kits that will enable corporate and governmental fleet managers and convenience store and travel center operators to more quickly and efficiently add modern natural gas refueling options to their locations through one-stop shopping with GE. We are also working with the DeBartolo Corporation, one of the nation's largest real estate developers, to develop hundreds of CNG stations across the U.S. in the next few years in addition to our partnerships with existing national retailers.

oil products as the foundation of its transportation system for 100 years, it may take a decade to make the transition, despite the remarkable present price disparity. However, many significant consumers of gasoline or diesel in the U.S. are increasingly focused on the likelihood of significantly higher oil prices in the future and are beginning to recognize how quickly our transportation system could be converted to natural gas.

BIG NATURAL GAS DEMAND CHANGES ON THE HORIZON

Over the past three years, Chesapeake has made bold moves to help increase demand for natural gas in the U.S. In addition to encouraging utilities and public utility commissions to make the switch from Chesapeake has made bold moves to help increase demand for natural gas in the U.S.

We are also collaborating with GE and Whirlpool Corporation (NYSE:WHR) on their individual efforts to market a new, lower cost natural gas home refueling appliance (HRA). Approximately 65 million American homes already have natural gas piped to them. Offering an inexpensive HRA option directly to the homeowner or indirectly through a leasing program with their local gas distribution company will be a complete game changer for how Americans fuel their cars and trucks.

As American gasoline and diesel prices now exceed $4 per gallon in many areas, imagine the positive impact on the country's economy and the budgets of millions of American families if these fuel prices could be lowered by 50 to 75%.

This would be yet another way natural gas could transform the American economy for the better.

Finally, Chesapeake NG Ventures' engineering department has invented a revolutionary "Diesel Natural Gas" (DNG) kit. We intend to begin selling this kit for approximately $35-40,000 into the diesel engine market later this year, which will enable diesel engines to be converted to a blend of diesel and natural gas, with natural gas constituting up to 70% of the blend. The average large American truck consumes 15-20,000 gallons of diesel per year, and with a minimum of $2 per gallon savings from using our device, the payout should occur within one year and provide multiple years of future returns of $30-40,000 in

COMMITTED TO AMERICAN ENERGY INDEPENDENCE

The time is now to begin breaking OPEC's 40-year stranglehold on the U.S. economy and to lower energy costs to American consumers. The time is now to enhance national security, stimulate economic growth, create millions of high-paying jobs and improve the environment. The time is now for America to embrace natural gas as its fuel of the future. Currently priced significantly less than diesel or gasoline, American natural gas produces up to 30% lower greenhouse gas emissions in light-duty vehicles and up to 20% lower emissions in medium- to heavy-duty vehicles. The U.S. is the largest producer of natural gas in the world and we believe it has more recoverable resources of natural gas than Saudi Arabia has oil reserves — we need to take full advantage of this buried American treasure of natural gas. To help accomplish this, Chesapeake has created Chesapeake NG Ventures Corporation to invest at least $1.0 billion in a variety of initiatives designed to increase natural gas demand in the U.S.

We are helping create America's Natural Gas Highway System through our $160 million partnership with Clean Energy Fuels Corp., which will provide heavy-duty trucks ready access to natural gas along major interstate highways. We believe it will transform the trucking industry by lowering its costs and reducing emissions and will help America achieve independence from OPEC.

We have committed $155 million to acquire 50% ownership of Sundrop Fuels, Inc. which has developed an affordable natural gas-based green gasoline that is fully compatible with today's engines and fueling infrastructure. The result is a shelf-stable, ready-replacement fuel for the costly gasoline and diesel derived from foreign oil.

CHESAPEAKE INITIATIVES

Partner
Natural Gas Solutions

We are collaborating with GE to develop infrastructure solutions that will help accelerate the adoption of natural gas as a transportation fuel. GE has committed to provide more than 250 "CNG In A Box™" modular and standardized CNG compression stations for natural gas vehicle (NGV) infrastructure which will provide the core infrastructure to enable expanded access to CNG at fueling stations and other designated installations. The collaboration will also focus on modular LNG fueling plants to support expanded use of LNG as a substitute for diesel or gasoline.

We are collaborating with 3M in designing, manufacturing and marketing a broad portfolio of larger, lighter and more affordable CNG tanks that we believe will enable greater market adoption of CNG as an alternative automotive fuel source.

Other important ongoing Chesapeake initiatives:

- In the second half of 2012, we plan to roll out our proprietary Diesel Natural Gas technology, which permits diesel engines to be retrofitted to run on a blend of natural gas and diesel.
- We are working with major appliance manufacturers to release a CNG home-refueling appliance, targeting a cost of $1,500, instead of $5,000 today, giving 65 million American homeowners and more than five million commercial facilities the opportunity to take advantage of the current 75% discount to gasoline prices.
- To date, we have invested $4 million with Love's Travel Stops & Country Stores and OnCue Express to enable more than 35 new CNG stations to be built in Oklahoma and we have committed to invest another $50 million with other convenience store and travel center operators to add CNG refueling pumps to at least 200 existing stations throughout the country.

annual fuel cost savings. Such savings make the up-front investment even more attractive. One can only imagine the benefit to America's consumers if the trucking industry makes this transition, as lower fuel costs mean lower costs for all products. Trains, planes and ships won't be too far behind either.

IMAGINE A STRONGER, MORE PROSPEROUS AMERICA

Today the market is providing powerful economic signals for the transition to natural gas. As it occurs, our nation will become stronger in a number of ways: we will reduce energy costs, create more jobs, contribute to a cleaner environment, create more wealth with higher incomes and enhanced government revenue streams, and reduce our present foreign oil import bill. Furthermore, we will be able to reposition our foreign policy as we become increasingly independent of OPEC.

Imagine an America with the lowest energy prices in the industrialized world, with millions of new, high-paying blue- and white-collar jobs created as we build a larger infrastructure for oil and natural gas drilling, producing, processing and transportation while also developing a new value-adding natural gas fueling infrastructure. It has been decades since any industry in the U.S. has been able to promise job opportunities of this magnitude to millions of Americans, especially blue-collar workers who have suffered the most during the de-industrialization of America and the globalization of the world's economy during the past 30 years.

Despite the burdens imposed by increasing federal regulation, the oil and natural gas industry can almost singlehandedly turn the U.S. economy around, and Chesapeake will be at the forefront of this movement. For example, just in the past two years, Chesapeake has directly created more than 2,400 blue-collar jobs and 2,000 white-collar jobs and tens of thousands of additional jobs indirectly. As an added benefit, more than 700 of the Chesapeake jobs have been filled by veterans of our military services.

IMAGINE AN AMERICA NO LONGER RELIANT UPON OPEC

It's a little known, but frightening, fact that America exports approximately $1 million per minute to oil producers around the globe. Over the course of a decade, that totals $5 trillion — the greatest wealth transfer in the history of the world. It's completely unsustainable and unnecessary because there is more natural gas in the U.S. than there is oil in Saudi Arabia. America can either ignore this opportunity and bankrupt itself importing OPEC oil or it can make the bold move to take advantage of the shale gas and unconventional oil resources Chesapeake and a handful of other companies have discovered in the U.S., restoring America's economy to a growth engine second to none in the world.

Further imagine what it would be like to be able to simply say "no" to OPEC oil or, better yet, "To heck with OPEC!" We've not been able to do that since the early 1970s. However, despite the failure to stem the rising tide of foreign oil imports during the past 40 years, I am confident a concerted effort to accelerate development of America's shale gas and unconventional oil resources can make our country fully independent of OPEC oil within 10 years. We put a man on the moon in 10 years in the 1960s, so we should certainly be able to use American natural gas and oil to replace OPEC oil imports within 10 years.

This independence from OPEC would have enormously important psychological and competitive benefits for our country, and for the first time in 50 years we would be able to control our energy destiny. Just as our country's economy benefited greatly from the surge in American oil production from 1920 to 1970 (1.2 million barrels of oil per day to 9.6 million barrels of oil per day), America could once again lead the world in economic growth if we achieved lower energy costs and a significant reduction in our oil import expense — all directly resulting from technological advances applied to world-class unconventional reservoirs right here in the U.S.

An added benefit of energy independence would be fewer and less expensive foreign military entanglements. During the past 10 years we have suffered more than 236,000 casualties and spent more than $3 trillion dollars fighting conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan. It is quite possible these conflicts could have been avoided or minimized if we had not been reliant upon OPEC oil and had our oil imports not indirectly funded terrorism against the U.S. during the past decade.

Developing America's oil and natural gas resources can provide our policymakers with the opportunity to develop a new foreign policy that capitalizes on America's emerging ability to rely on its own endowment of unconventional resources to become energy independent from OPEC. This could very well be one of the most liberating events in our nation's history. I look forward to celebrating American energy independence 10 years from now, just in time for the 50th anniversary of the first OPEC oil embargo.

A CLEANER AMERICA, TOO

The development of America's homegrown energy resources will not only save money, it will improve our environment. Currently, the U.S. is the world's second-largest emitter of carbon dioxide and also a Top 10 emitter of particulates, mercury and other airborne pollutants. Virtually all these pollutants come from burning coal to generate electricity and consuming gasoline and diesel for transportation. Substituting natural gas for coal, gasoline and diesel is the only actionable, affordable and scalable pathway toward a cleaner environment.

You don't read about it very often, but since 1996 natural gas has already replaced approximately 20% of the coal burned in America to make electricity. As a result, U.S. coal consumption in 2012 will likely be the lowest in 16 years. Even more important, our air will be cleaner and public health will be better as a result.

Now that we have begun this conversion from coal to natural gas, we should make it a national goal in the next few years to shut down all coal-fired power plants not equipped with state-of-the-art pollution control equipment. Because many coal-fired power plants are too old and inefficient to justify this financial investment, it is quite reasonable to expect that we can reduce American coal consumption by another 25 to 33% during the next 10 years. Ironically, doing so would reduce American carbon emissions below the 2020 level that was sought by President Obama's 2009 cap-and-trade bill. That contentious bill would have been enormously expensive if implemented and today would be unnecessary because of the rapidly increasing market share of natural gas in the power generation market.

Imagine what it would be like to be able to simply say "no" to OPEC oil.

Chesapeake takes very seriously its mission of finding and producing clean-burning, domestic energy for all Americans while protecting and improving the environment. At the same time, we are facing criticism from a vocal minority of extreme “environmentalists” who claim that the development and production of natural gas is somehow dangerous. I have read many outrageous and factually incorrect statements about natural gas development, especially the completion technique known as hydraulic fracturing, or “fracing,” which has been used successfully and safely by the industry more than 1.2 million times since 1948

(and 45,000 times last year alone) and approximately 13,000 times by Chesapeake since 1989.

The fact is more than 90% of new American nat-world’s energy at present — should end in the next 10 years, and that everyone will be able to live in some utopian world powered solely by the wind and the sun (and perhaps the moon and stars as well). Increasing consumption of natural gas has luckily disrupted the dangerous fantasy that modern life can co-exist with the elimination of fossil fuels from the world’s economy. Such beliefs ignore the obvious and inconvenient truth that wind and solar power constitute less than 2% of America’s total energy production and produce electricity at a cost two to five times more than natural gas.

Our response has been low key, measured and fact based. We have provided transparency about the products that we use (see www.fracfocus.org), remained dedicated to lowering water consumption further (even though the industry accounts for less than 1% of total water consumption in every state where we operate), reduced our use of chemicals whenever possible (even though these chemicals are safely used 6,000–15,000 feet below the ground, and most of them can be found in the average American home or backyard) and continued to decrease fugitive gas emissions.

In April 2011, Chesapeake issued an environmental principles statement (see www.chk.com/environment/commitment) that guides us in all our operations. We are proud of our technological and environmental leadership in the industry and of our industry’s overall track record. We will strive to do even better in the years ahead, but please recognize there will be a number of advocates for competing fuels and ideologies who will continue to denigrate Chesapeake and our industry for reasons related to the shale gas technology that we have successfully employed in the marketplace — a technology that is rapidly improving the U.S. economy and improving the lives of millions of Americans through lower home heating bills, lower electricity prices, lower food prices, lower cost of manufactured goods and, someday, sooner than you may believe, lower transportation costs as well.

CONCLUSION

I am very proud of our distinctive, innovative and hardworking company and the many keen insights we have developed that have guided our bold moves over the past 20 years. More important, I am profoundly excited about the big future that lies ahead for Chesapeake, our shareholders and our country.

I am very proud of our distinctive, innovative and hardworking company.

ural gas wells employ the use of fracture stimulation to enhance productivity. The most extreme of the claims against us — that fracing harms humans and livestock, causes cancer, pollutes groundwater and waterways, causes earthquakes, etc. — are absurd and troubling, because they are recklessly reported over and over in the news media. I’m concerned that many people, perhaps solely from sheer repetition, may come to believe the inaccurate and unsubstantiated statements that are in the news media.

I have learned over the years that a number of our most inflexible detractors believe the age of fossil fuels — oil, coal and natural gas, which collectively provide approximately 86% of the

Our shareholders will benefit from the rebound in natural gas prices that will occur in the next few years as supply growth stalls and demand growth accelerates. They will also benefit from Chesapeake's increasing percentage of total production that will come from our liquids-rich plays — think of a factory that is shifting its production lines toward liquids-rich widgets that sell for $10–20 per unit (mcf) compared to the $2 per unit (mcf) gas widgets that we are producing today. As a result, Chesapeake's returns on capital and assets should increase dramatically in the years ahead as a consequence of the ever-increasing percentage of more valuable widgets we will be selling as the company transitions from an exclusively natural gas-focused company to one that will have achieved significant balance in its production profile.

I am also excited about the big future that lies ahead for America as Chesapeake and other producers help create a clear path toward a more sustainable, affordable, cleaner and independent energy future. America only needs to embrace the remarkable gift of U.S. unconventional energy abundance it has been given.

You have my commitment, and the commitment of Chesapeake's 12,600 employees, that every day we will keep working hard to create increasing shareholder value and an improving future for our communities, our states and our country through the continued development of American unconventional natural gas and oil.

OPERATING AREAS

Chesapeake is the second-largest producer of U.S. natural gas, a Top 15 producer of oil and natural gas liquids and the most active driller of new wells in the U.S. The company has built the industry's largest onshore U.S. oil and natural gas resource base including high-quality assets and leading positions in the Barnett, Haynesville, Bossier, Marcellus and Pearsall natural gas shale plays and in the Eagle Ford, Utica, Granite Wash, Cleveland, Tonkawa, Mississippi Lime, Bone Spring, Avalon, Wolfcamp, Wolfberry and Niobrara unconventional liquids plays.

We own interests in approximately 45,700 producing natural gas and oil wells, and in 2011 we produced approximately 1.2 trillion cubic feet of natural gas equivalent (tcf), or an average of 3.3 billion cubic feet of natural gas equivalent (bcfe) per day. At year-end 2011, our proved reserves were 18.8 tcf, of which 54% were proved developed and all of which were located onshore in the U.S. We have captured an inventory of up to 125,000 future drilling opportunities — more than 40 years worth of drilling opportunities — on approximately 15.3 million net leasehold acres in the U.S. Chesapeake's concentrated operational focus has allowed the company to build leading positions in 11 of the top 15 unconventional liquids-rich plays and in four of the top five unconventional natural gas shale plays in the U.S.

In recognition of the value gap between oil and natural gas prices that has widened to historic levels in the last three years, Chesapeake has directed virtually all of its technological and leasehold acquisition expertise to identify, secure and commercialize new unconventional liquids-rich plays. This planned transition will result in a more balanced and more profitable portfolio between natural gas and liquids. To date, we have built leasehold positions and established production in multiple liquids-rich plays on approximately 6.6 million net leasehold acres. Our production of liquids averaged approximately 87,000 barrels (bbls) per day during 2011, a 72% increase over the average during 2010, as a result of the increased development of our unconventional liquids-rich plays. In 2011, approximately 50% of our drilling and completion expenditures were allocated to liquids-rich plays, compared to 30% in 2010, 10% in 2009 and an expected 85% in 2012.

SOUTHERN DIVISION

Our Southern Division includes the Haynesville and Bossier shale plays in north-western Louisiana and East Texas and the Barnett Shale play in the Fort Worth Basin of north-central Texas. During 2011, we invested approximately $2.7 billion to drill 1,104 gross (550 net) wells, net of $417 million in drilling and completion cost carries paid by our Barnett Shale joint venture partner, Total E&P USA, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Total S.A. (NYSE:TOT, FP:FP). The Southern Division was the company's largest contributor to natural gas production, led by the substantial growth from the Haynesville/Bossier shales where our gross operated production surpassed 2.0 bcf per day in late 2011, the first operator in U.S. history to reach that level of production from one field.

In early 2012, given that our leasehold acreage in the division is now almost completely held by production (HBP) and in response to the lowest natural gas prices in the past 10 years, we announced plans to dramatically reduce our operated dry gas drilling activity and capital expenditures in the Southern Division. We plan to reduce our drilling activity in both the Haynesville/Bossier and Barnett shales to six operated rigs each during the 2012 second quarter. In 2012, we anticipate spending approximately $700 million, or 10% of our total budget, for exploration and development activities in the Southern Division.

NORTHERN DIVISION

Our Northern Division includes the Granite Wash, Cleveland, Tonkawa and Mississippi Lime liquids-rich plays located in the Anadarko Basin in western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. Prior to April 2011, the Fayetteville Shale was also included in the Northern Division. In March 2011, we sold all of our Fayetteville Shale assets to BHP Billiton Petroleum, a wholly owned subsidiary of BHP Billiton Limited (NYSE:BHP; ASX:BHP) for approximately $4.65 billion in cash. The transaction included net production of approximately 415 million cubic feet of natural gas equivalent per day and midstream assets with approximately 420 miles of pipeline.

During 2011, we invested approximately $1.8 billion to drill 1,076 gross (342 net) wells in this division. The main focus of our leasehold acquisition in the division in 2011 has been in the Mississippi Lime carbonate play, as we almost doubled our acreage position in the play and increased our operated rig count to 22 rigs and plan to maintain that level throughout 2012. The increase in liquids production for the division was primarily driven by the Mississippi Lime play, as well as the Cleveland and Tonkawa tight sand plays in which we increased our operated rig count to 20 rigs between the two plays and plan to maintain that level throughout 2012.

We plan to execute three asset monetizations in the Northern Division in 2012, which include VPP 10 in the Texas Panhandle Granite Wash, a financial transaction in our Cleveland and Tonkawa plays and an expected joint venture partnership in our Mississippi Lime play. For 2012, we anticipate spending approximately $2.6 billion, or 36% of our total budget, for exploration and development activities in the Northern Division, with a continuing focus on the Granite Wash, where rates of return are the highest in our company, and an increasing focus on the Cleveland, Tonkawa and Mississippi Lime unconventional liquids-rich plays.

EASTERN DIVISION

Our Eastern Division includes the Marcellus Shale play in the northern Appalachian Basin of West Virginia and Pennsylvania and the Utica Shale play in eastern Ohio, northwestern West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. The Utica Shale is the sixth unconventional play that Chesapeake has discovered to date, and the play contains dry natural gas, wet natural gas and oil producing areas. During 2011, we invested approximately $1.5 billion to drill 371 gross (149 net) wells in this division. At the end of 2011, Chesapeake completed a joint venture and sold 25% of its assets in the wet gas portion of the Utica to Total for $2.03 billion in cash and future drilling carries. Chesapeake tripled its rig count in the Utica during 2011 and began to ramp up liquids production in the play.

In early 2012, Chesapeake announced plans to further reduce its operated dry gas drilling activity and capital expenditures in the Marcellus Shale in response to the lowest natural gas price in the past 10 years. Accordingly, we plan to reduce our drilling activity in the dry gas portion of the Marcellus to 12 operated rigs during the 2012 second quarter. Conversely, Chesapeake will be ramping up drilling in the Utica and plans to have 20 rigs running in the play by year-end 2012 to further delineate the play and concentrate on increasing liquids production from the play. For 2012, we anticipate spending approximately $1.2 billion, or 17% of our total budget, net of carries from our joint venture partners, for exploration and development activities in the Eastern Division.

WESTERN DIVISION

Our Western Division includes the Permian and Delaware basins of West Texas and southern New Mexico including the Bone Spring, Avalon, Wolfcamp, Wolfberry plays, the Eagle Ford Shale play in South Texas and the Rocky Mountain/Williston Basin plays, including the Niobrara Shale play. During 2011, we invested approximately $1.7 billion to drill 428 gross (241 net) wells, net of $1.0 billion in drilling and completion cost carries paid by our joint venture partner in the Eagle Ford Shale and the Niobrara Shale. In February 2011, Chesapeake completed a joint venture and sold 33% of its assets in the Niobrara to CNOOC Limited (NYSE:CEO; SEHK:0883) for $1.27 billion in cash and carries. The joint venture with CNOOC was the second for Chesapeake in the Western Division, as the company also completed a joint venture with CNOOC in the Eagle Ford Shale during 2010. Chesapeake received the Deal of the Year Award at the Platts Global Energy Awards for these ground-breaking and value-added international joint venture partnerships.

Chesapeake has also announced plans for a transaction including its Permian Basin assets through either a joint venture partnership or a complete sale by the end of the 2012 third quarter. For 2012, we anticipate spending approximately $2.7 billion, or 37% of our total budget, net of carries from our joint venture partner, for exploration and development activities in the Western Division, with the Eagle Ford Shale attracting approximately 85% of the division's capital.

What is driving CHK's substantial liquids production growth?

In response to strong oil and NGL prices as well as ongoing operational and technological success, we have greatly accelerated drilling in our liquids-rich plays. In 2011, our liquids-rich plays accounted for approximately 50% of our drilling and completion expenditures, and in 2012, we project that spending on these plays will exceed 85%. During 2011, we increased our average operated rig count on liquids-rich plays by 55 rigs, or 150%, to 92, and we plan to increase this level by 41 rigs, or 45%, to 133 rigs in 2012.

Our production from liquids increased by 36,000 bbls per day, or 72%, in 2011 to 87,000 bbls per day, and we anticipate a further increase of more than 63,000 bbls per day, or 70%, in 2012 to 150,000 bbls per day (excluding the effect of our projected asset monetization transactions in the Permian Basin and Mississippi Lime play). We are well on the way to achieving our goal of increasing average daily liquids production to 250,000 bbls per day by 2015, a level at which we will likely be a Top 5 U.S. liquids producer.

One of our largest increases in liquids production for 2011 and 2012 has been from the Eagle Ford Shale play in South Texas. We have drilled approximately 470 wells to date, of which only 280 wells are producing (mainly because of infrastructure bottlenecks), and almost half of the producing wells have had peak production rates in excess of 500 bbls per day. In 2011, we made substantial progress in building the needed infrastructure in the Eagle Ford by adding 350 miles of pipeline as well as regional rail-loading terminals. As a result, we expect production from the Eagle Ford to account for just over 25% of total liquids production by year-end 2012.

Our production from the Mississippi Lime carbonate play in northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas is also ramping up nicely, growing by approximately 3,500 bbls per day, or 140%, in 2011, and we anticipate continued success from this play with growth of more than 14,000 bbls per day, or 230%, projected for 2012. We also continue to experience excellent results in the Anadarko Basin from our Granite Wash, Cleveland and Tonkawa tight sand plays and from our liquids-rich Niobrara Shale play in the Powder River Basin. Lastly, we look forward to ramping up drilling activity and production from our recent discovery in the Utica Shale play in eastern Ohio where we have very high expectations.

How has CHK been able to discover the most new U.S. unconventional resource plays?

The skill set required for new play identification and subsequent aggressive leasing is not easily obtained. Over the years, Chesapeake has made a concerted effort to invest in and develop the necessary skills and resources to become the premier discoverer and developer of U.S. unconventional resource plays. Our track record for finding unconventional resource plays is unmatched in the industry, leading the way in discovering the Haynesville and Bossier shales in Louisiana, the Colony Granite Wash in western Oklahoma, the Tonkawa tight sand play in western Oklahoma, the Mississippi Lime carbonate play in northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas and most recently the Utica Shale in eastern Ohio.

Our investment and commitment to people and technology have paid tremendous dividends. Since 2000, the company has grown its geoscience, engineering and operational staff from 200 to more than 2,550 at year-end 2011. The company benefits tremendously from the industry's only in-house shale core Reservoir Technology Center which uses proprietary testing techniques on rock core samples taken thousands of feet beneath the surface from various unconventional plays. Performing complex analysis in-house rather than relying on third-party providers gives Chesapeake greater confidentiality and consistency of data. It also provides a massive data inventory on hundreds of plays and a critical time advantage over peers in evaluating new plays — all key first mover advantages.

What advantages does CHK have as a result of its vertical integration strategy?

Chesapeake's vertical integration strategy into oilfield services (including drilling rigs, oilfield rentals, hydraulic fracturing, rig moving logistic services, directional tools, mud-logging and water and crude oil hauling services, among others) and midstream services (including gathering, compression, processing and marketing) helps alleviate shortages of services and avoid bottlenecks that could inhibit our rapid development of new plays. As the most active driller of new wells in the nation and with the potential to drill up to 125,000 future wells, our success is predicated on having access to critical services to drill, complete, produce, gather and market our production.

By owning the companies that provide these services, we are able to quickly and efficiently align our service operations and assets to match our needs and secure cost savings and efficient capital deployment. Our oilfield service and midstream businesses also enable us to capture profits that otherwise would be paid to third-party service providers. Executing our drilling program on our timeline, according to our specifications and quality standards helps us drill wells better, faster, cheaper and, importantly, safer, as we operate America's largest drilling program.

Why has CHK become the “partner of choice” for JV transactions?

During the past four years, Chesapeake has led the industry in creating and completing innovative joint venture (JV) partnerships in U.S. unconventional resource plays, with five world-class energy companies as our partners (Plains, BP, Statoil, Total, CNOOC). In total, we have completed seven transactions and sold 1.5 million net acres of leasehold for total consideration of more than $16 billion, representing nearly half of the total value of JV transactions completed in the U.S. since 2008. While certainly value-creating transactions for Chesapeake, these JVs have proven to be exceptional investment opportunities for our partners as well.

The company has become the partner of choice for unconventional resource play development due to its unique abilities to combine premier new play identification skills with an unrivaled leasehold acquisition program, the industry's largest and most active drilling program, cutting-edge drilling, completion and production technology, leading health, safety and environmental practices along with operations that are vertically integrated into oilfield service and midstream operations. This unique combination of capabilities allows Chesapeake to identify and secure premier, low-risk unconventional assets which we can develop more efficiently than any other company in the industry. This translates into an unparalleled opportunity for our partners to participate in a predictable, multi-decade drilling program with some of the highest risk-adjusted returns in the industry.

How is CHK benefiting from converting from gasoline and diesel to natural gas?

Chesapeake is accelerating the conversion of the vast majority of its drilling rigs and truck fleet from gasoline and diesel to either compressed natural gas (CNG) or liquefied natural gas (LNG). By the end of 2012, we expect to have converted 1,500 of our light-duty fleet vehicles and 400 of our heavy-duty fleet vehicles to run on either CNG or LNG. We also plan to convert 40 of our Nomac land drilling rigs by year-end 2012 to run on a blend of LNG and diesel. These conversions will not only lower our environmental footprint, they will also save the company an estimated $250 million annually once fully implemented. However, the benefits of converting our operations to natural gas go far beyond cost savings. Our conversion efforts help catalyze the adoption of natural gas by other fuel users, and our scale helps underpin capital investments in infrastructure and new equipment by other early adopters and market leaders. In turn, we are creating incremental demand for the key product we produce — natural gas.

We are firm believers in the merits of natural gas and have become outspoken advocates about its greater use as a transportation fuel in the U.S. We are leading the way in demonstrating how to convert the nation's transportation system to natural gas, helping build infrastructure and investing in new technologies and equipment to make it much easier, more affordable and practical for Americans to shift to clean, affordable and American natural gas rather than expensive and dangerous OPEC oil.

As a consequence of our actions and those of others, the marketplace is increasingly moving toward CNG and LNG. Our industry-leading natural gas demand enhancement team is working every day with some of the most respected companies in the nation, such as Ford, General Motors, Navistar, 3M, Clean Energy, Whirlpool and General Electric, to find achievable and scalable solutions sooner rather than later to bring the tremendous benefits of natural gas to ever-increasing numbers of American businesses and consumers.

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Chesapeake is more than America's champion of natural gas. We're a champion of our employees, communities, nation and planet. Our unique corporate culture centers around our employees' hard work, safety and wellness. We lend a helping hand to individuals and organizations that improve lives in hundreds of communities throughout our operating areas. And we maintain an unwavering commitment to finding and producing America's valuable energy resources in the most environmentally responsible manner possible.

BOLD MOVE:

Matching gift inspires generosity and provides 18.5 million meals

Chesapeake challenged the community with a $1.0 million match to the Regional Food Bank of Oklahoma, resulting in $3.8 million in total contributions from Central Oklahomans to fight hunger

BOLD MOVE:

Eliminating chemicals for greener hydraulic fracturing

Through the company's Green Frac® program, approximately 60% of all non-acid additives used in hydraulic fracturing operations in our major shale plays have been replaced or eliminated during the past two years

BOLD MOVE:

Making sweat equity investments in our communities

Employees volunteered 42,000 hours through the company's H.E.L.P. Initiative (Helping Energize Local Progress)

Chesapeake volunteer mentor John Carney, IT Supervisor – Business Systems, enjoys the company-sponsored Christmas Party at Horace Mann Elementary School, where more than 330 students benefit from having Chesapeake mentors.

COMMUNITY RELATIONS

When Chesapeake operates in a community, businesses thrive and nonprofit organizations gain valuable benefits. Evidence of our commitment to being the best neighbor and corporate partner is shown by the more than $31 million the company gave in 2011 to support charitable organizations, event sponsorships and projects across our operating areas, primarily focusing on community development, education, health care and social services.

THE ECONOMICS

The energy industry has been booming, and communities where Chesapeake operates have been sharing in the boom. From the Marcellus Shale in Pennsylvania and West Virginia through the Utica Shale in Ohio to the Eagle Ford Shale in South Texas, new enterprises are emerging and established businesses are thriving in response to an influx of new customers and an upswing in the energy industry.

Everywhere we operate, Chesapeake also pays taxes that fund schools, roads, parks, recreational facilities and more. In 2011, Chesapeake paid approximately $850 million in taxes including ad valorem, severance, sales, employer, and corporate income and franchise taxes. In addition, we invested more than $225 million in road maintenance in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, always leaving roads in better condition than they were when our activities began.

Industry boosts deli

When Donna Saur opened a deli shop in 2009 in downtown Carrollton, Ohio, population of approximately 3,000, she was pleased the community immediately supported it. But two years later, more good fortune came Saur's way when Chesapeake's Utica Shale drilling began in the area. People who work on the rigs or in ancillary businesses quickly learned about the home cooking at Saur's restaurant.

"Business has increased 50% because of Chesapeake," she said. "It's been a blessing. Sometimes I just can't believe it."

What started with a group of eight guys for lunch quickly grew into 10 groups of eight to 10 guys, said Saur. "They're all so polite and thankful for this community. I like having them."

EDUCATION COUNTS

The future of America always depends on the leadership and creativity of the new generation and the next. That's why investing in educational institutions and programs is a priority at Chesapeake. From preschools to universities, we donated $9.4 million to education in 2011, and of that amount, $2.4 million helped fund higher education.

Working mother receives Chesapeake scholarship

Denise Davis was a working mother of two, with a third on the way, attending classes at Bossier Parish Community College (BPCC) in Louisiana. She was not eligible for financial aid and was scrambling to fund her second semester when she discovered the Chesapeake Energy Corporation Scholarship offered through the school.

"I'm so thankful for the Chesapeake scholarship because it's the reason I stayed in school," said Davis. "If it were not for those funds, I would not have been able to continue with my classes and gain the foundation I need to pursue my goals."

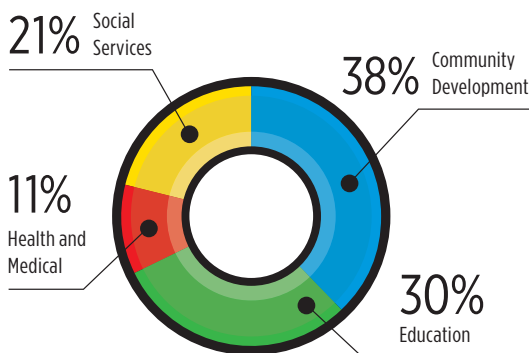

Davis is also proud to set an example for her daughters — that education matters and is worth the hard work and effort.

After completing courses at BPCC, Davis plans to earn her bachelor's degree from the University of Alabama – Huntsville and hopes to one day work for an energy company.

Since 2008, Chesapeake has provided $45,000 to BPCC; Northwestern State University; Louisiana State University – Shreveport; Southern University – Shreveport; Centenary College of Louisiana and Louisiana Tech to fund academic programs and scholarships.

CHESAPEAKE'S $31 MILLION OF CHARITABLE GIVING IN 2011

COMMUNITY IMPACT

In every area where Chesapeake operates, we've earned a reputation as a consistent and generous community partner. From providing funding for local symphonies to supplying water bottles at softball events, Chesapeake looks for meaningful ways to give back. Sometimes that means writing a check or donating computers, and other times that means giving employees company time to volunteer in their communities.

For many nonprofit organizations, securing resources to complete their missions presents a constant challenge. Chesapeake works closely with our neighbors to see how we can recycle some of our resources. The company provided several in-kind donations in 2011, from reconditioned fleet trucks to Christmas lights. By passing on serviceable used resources, we provide much-needed items for numerous nonprofit organizations.

We also encourage employees to give back, and we make it easy through annual fundraising drives where Chesapeake matches employee contributions. Employees dug deep this year in the annual United Way drive, with the company matching every donation dollar for dollar. Company-wide United Way contributions were $6.3 million, with $5.5 million raised for the United Way's Central Oklahoma chapter alone, by far the largest single contribution to the $22.2 million campaign.

Putting food on the table while reducing our environmental footprint is made possible through Chesapeake's Employee Garden. Located on the company's Oklahoma City headquarters campus is a two-acre garden where almost 300 employees grow organic produce. The garden not only provides a fun atmosphere for employees to build relationships outside of the office, it also allows them to grow their own produce and teaches them about health and sustainability. In addition, Chesapeake's restaurants provide waste to the garden's on-site compost. There are also five plots devoted to growing produce for local food pantries. Employee volunteers tend these gardens as another way to positively impact their communities by providing healthy, fresh food.

Company-wide United Way contributions were $6.3 million, with $5.5 million raised for the United Way's Central Oklahoma chapter alone.

Operation Blue makes a difference

Each year as part of the Chesapeake H.E.L.P. Initiative, employees are allowed to use four hours of company time in a summer volunteer push — Operation Blue — named for the brightly colored H.E.L.P. Initiative shirts that flood dozens of communities during the targeted event. For the third year in a row, employees got their hands dirty in their local communities through a variety of service projects including restoring playgrounds, sorting clothes at infant crisis centers, serving meals at shelters and more. In summer 2011, employees logged more than 31,000 hours through Operation Blue, assisting 444 nonprofit organizations in 122 communities across the United States. Their efforts pushed the year-round H.E.L.P. Initiative total to 42,000 hours.

Shedding light and cheer

Oklahoma City became a little brighter during the holiday season with Chesapeake's donation of 10,000 strands of holiday lights to local organizations and schools. The incandescent lights had adorned the company's Oklahoma City campus until 2009, when they were replaced with energy-saving LED lights. One of the organizations that benefited from the donation was the City Rescue Mission, which provides basic needs to homeless people, including food, shelter and community resources. The lights were placed on every Christmas tree inside the mission, making the holidays a little more festive for shelter residents.

"Those who are homeless or in troubled situations can't experience the holidays the way many of us do," said Tiffany Webb, Director of Development for the shelter. "The donation allowed us to make this place seem more like a home for them, and being able to do that was very special for us."

ENVIRONMENTAL, HEALTH AND SAFETY

As the second-largest producer of natural gas and the most active driller of new wells in the U.S., Chesapeake isn't a stranger to bold moves. Whether it's leading the way into a new play, setting the bar for environmentally conscious operations or standing proud with an impressive safety record, we are committed to being the best of the best in every aspect of our operations.

Public Education

As part of our Commitment to Environmental Excellence and as an outspoken industry advocate, Chesapeake actively engages with shareholders, stakeholders and local residents to establish open and honest communication about our operations. We host regular Town Hall meetings, meet with landowner organizations and provide our This School Rocks program in classrooms each year, which teaches elementary to high school students the basics about natural gas and oil. In addition, we host regular rig tours and provide shale school training for various stakeholder groups to inform and educate them about our operations and safeguards.

To further our public education efforts, we also provide insightful animations, illustrations, videos and other resources that explain all aspects of our operations through the Educational Library section of www.chk.com. In addition, we maintain numerous websites including www.askchesapeake.com, www.hydraulicfracturing.com, www.naturalgasairemissions.com, www.naturalgaswaterusage.com, www.CNGnow.com and www.NaturalGas.is, all of which offer insight into Chesapeake and the energy industry.

COMMITMENT TO ENVIRONMENTAL EXCELLENCE

Chesapeake is committed to continually improving exploration and production activities. Our goal is to reduce our country's dependence on expensive foreign oil and dirty coal, and transition to clean-burning natural gas through the use of industry-leading operational practices and continuous technological innovation and improvement.

Because of our commitment to environmental excellence, Chesapeake has established the following core values and is continuing to integrate them into all decisions affecting our operations. In addition, we expect the same commitment from our contractors and vendors.

- Business Philosophy — We are committed to protecting our country's natural resources, caring for the environment and complying with all applicable local, state and federal laws and regulations as part of our daily operations.
- Operational Excellence — We always strive for excellence and are satisfied with nothing less. We will move quickly to rectify any environmental problem associated with our operations and address any issue that might arise.
- Commitment of Resources — We will provide the human, physical and financial resources to achieve our environmental protection objectives, and we expect our employees, contractors, suppliers and vendors to do likewise to ensure that our operations are clean and safe.
- Continuous Improvement — We will continue to evaluate evolving environmental protection measures with the goal of improving our operating practices and further reducing our environmental footprint using the latest technologies and operational procedures.
- Support of Industry Regulation — We support science-based regulation at the appropriate level of government that ensures natural gas and oil wells are drilled, completed and produced safely and responsibly.
- Community Focus — We will always strive to be charitable, engaged and responsible partners in the communities where we live and work.

In conjunction with these efforts, Chesapeake has developed and implemented a number of focus programs. A number of those focus programs are listed below, and a full list can be found at www.chk.com/environment/commitment.

- Continuing to disclose hydraulic fracturing ingredients through www.fracfocus.org
- Protecting groundwater aquifers through exceptional well design and construction
- Preserving air quality through design practices and regularly monitoring the integrity of our facilities and pipelines
- Limiting surface impact with multiwell padsites in environmentally sensitive areas and when possible using existing infrastructure
- Handling, transporting, disposing and, where appropriate, recycling of waste in the most efficient manner to reduce the likelihood of spills and the amount of overall waste
- Continually evaluating and improving our Best Management Practices to ensure industry-leading excellence

COMMITMENT TO SAFETY

Protecting the well-being of our employees and neighbors always comes first and is something we will not compromise. We ensure that everyone who sets foot on a Chesapeake location is properly trained, and with almost 12,600 employees and countless contractors and vendors, this can be a daunting task. To help meet this challenge, our Environmental, Health and Safety (EHS) team offers more than 80 courses covering a wide range of topics from first aid and CPR to Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) compliance and emergency response through our internal, behavioral-based Chesapeake SAFE (Stay Accident Free Everyday) program.

In addition to these training efforts, our safety and environmental programs continue to evolve and improve. For example, our EHS Department recently established a three-tiered audit system to ensure that Chesapeake's sites are safe and in compliance with state and federal regulations. This auditing system includes:

- Field inspections of sites by trained personnel
- Regular program audits of a site against the company's EHS policies
- Consistent regulatory audits to determine compliance with Occupational Safety and Health Administration and Environmental Protection Agency requirements.

Chesapeake SAFE

As the foundation for all of Chesapeake's internal safety efforts, the SAFE (Stay Accident Free Everyday) program focuses on keeping employees safe and accident free through knowledge, empowerment and accountability. At Chesapeake, everyone is responsible for creating and maintaining a safe work environment. With more than 7,400 employees having completed our SAFE training courses since 2010, the program is garnering tremendous results. Typically in our industry, increases in workforce lead to increases in total recordable incident rates (TRIR). Thanks to the SAFE program, however, Chesapeake has enjoyed a 25% increase in workforce during the last two years — while realizing a 60% decrease in TRIR. This phenomenon has also held true for our affiliate companies, with Nomac and Great Plains recording a 67% increase in manpower and a 46% decrease in TRIR.

Thanks to support from senior management and throughout the company, Chesapeake's SAFE program is helping the company take the steps necessary to reach our zero-incident goal.

COMMITMENT TO HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Because our employees are our biggest asset, Chesapeake is committed to providing award-winning health and wellness facilities, initiatives and programs. With a state-of-the-art, 72,000-square-foot fitness facility, on-site health center and dozens of health and wellness programs, such as Living Well which pays employees to lead healthy lifestyles, it's no wonder Chesapeake is continually recognized as a premier place to work. From free Weight Watchers at Work and our Quit for Life smoking cessation programs to field fitness and health coaching, we are committed to providing the resources and positive reinforcement our employees need to live happy, healthy and well-balanced lives.

Your Life Matters

We launched the award-winning Your Life Matters campaign in 2010 to help employees balance a career and family, while addressing the normal stresses of life. The program provides information and resources for those who may be struggling with issues such as depression, anxiety, addiction or financial stress.

As part of this successful endeavor, Chesapeake's Employee Assistance Program (EAP) provides free, confidential services including consultation on legal and financial matters, help locating child care, assistance for estate and college planning, resources for purchasing a home and other life events or issues. Employees and their dependents also can enjoy six free counseling services per year. In 2011 alone, our EAP received more than 4,000 online requests and 800 phone calls. Originally designed as a one-year campaign, Your Life Matters met with such an overwhelmingly positive response it has been extended indefinitely.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This report includes "forward-looking statements" that give our current expectations or forecasts of future events. They include estimates of natural gas and oil reserves, expected production, assumptions regarding future natural gas and oil prices, planned drilling activity and capital expenditures, and future asset sales, as well as statements concerning anticipated cash flow and liquidity, business strategy and other plans and objectives for future operations. Although we believe the expectations and forecasts reflected in these and other forward-looking statements are reasonable, we can give no assurance they will prove to have been correct. They can be affected by inaccurate assumptions or by known or unknown risks and uncertainties.

Factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from expected results are described under "Risk Factors" in Item 1A of our 2011 Annual Report on Form 10-K included in this report. We caution you not to place undue reliance on forward-looking statements, and we undertake no obligation to update this information. We urge you to carefully review and consider the disclosures made in this report and our other filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) regarding the risks and factors that may affect our business.

The SEC requires natural gas and oil companies, in filings made with the SEC, to disclose proved reserves and permits the optional disclosure of probable and possible reserves. While Chesapeake has elected not to report probable and possible reserves in its filings with the SEC, we have provided estimates in this report of what we consider to be our "total resource base." This term includes our estimated proved reserves as well as "risky and unproved resources," which represent Chesapeake's internal estimates of volumes of natural gas and oil that are not classified as proved reserves but are potentially recoverable through exploratory drilling or additional drilling or recovery techniques. Our estimates of unproved resources are not intended to correspond to probable and possible reserves, as defined by SEC regulations, and are by their nature more speculative than estimates of proved reserves and accordingly are subject to substantially greater risk of being actually realized by the company.
